Evergreen, June 1st 1852

My dear Sir,

Your letter without date written on the eve of your departure for Baltimore was received on the 27th ult. and is in accordance with your request that I should write to you every week during your absence. I now commence, though I have but little of interest to communicate.

We have had rain enough and everything is looking as well as heart could wish. The crop grows as well as everything else, but I am using every effort to subdue it and think I shall succeed by and by. I hope by the 12th July to have the crop all in good order.

I have planted all the sea's and pumpkins. We did not have seed enough of either kind.

The lime has been burnt and applied to the corn, cotton, sugar cane & peas. As all of our corn was too far advanced towards maturity, July to test its effect, I thought it best to plant a few rows for that purpose.

The cotton at Cotton Gin is planted. Very little other work has been done since you left.

I think it highly probable that I shall be able to gin the balance of your cotton before you return. But as the completion of the press will be of no avail unless we had bailing, rope, twine, needles I shall not order the iron etc. until I again hear from you. I can gin the balance of the cotton without bailing a bale.

Mr. Scott has agreed to take the land at the price you offered it to him and upon authority granted by myself has commenced making his improvements.

Senis is here for a week or two until we get more out of the grape. I shall then put him to cutting cane.
Perhaps it may be some satisfaction for you to know that he as well as all the other negroes have behaved very well indeed since you left.
Albert has been cutting wood since you left
and will continue until your return.

Albert started to bale out the creek a few days since and I stopped him and told him to let it sink. If this is not agreeable to your wishes let me know.

If you have occasion to write to me again do not direct your letter to W. W. Ripper that is not my name.

Miss Murray continues unriled and sometimes complains much – she is about as you left her. Bamma has been quite sick but is now convalescent. Some of the other negroes have been a little sick but are all well now.

Very Respectfully,

Your friend,\

[Signature: E. W. Ripper]
